Fontaine International - North America Names New President, Vice President

Irondale, Ala. (Nov. 12, 2007) – Leading fifth wheel manufacturer Fontaine International - North America has new leadership. Henry Bell has been named president, and Terry Mennen has joined the company as vice president of business development.

Bell joined the Fontaine family in August 2005 as president of the Fleet Business Unit of Fontaine Trailer. He was charged with segmenting the Fleet Business from the Dealer Business during a period of tremendous growth. In the process, he hired a new team and led the design, construction and production launch of a new state-of-the-art trailer manufacturing facility in Jasper, Ala.

As president of Fontaine International - North America, Bell sets the company's strategic direction and is responsible for all aspects of its operations.

Bell came to Fontaine following a 15-year career with refuse collection vehicle manufacturer Heil Environmental. He held a number of roles with Heil, including sales, quality control and production superintendent. He served as general manager of Heil's parts business, Parts Central, before being promoted to general manager of Bayne Machine Works, Inc. a Heil subsidiary.

Bell earned a bachelor's degree in political science from the University of Georgia.

Mennen comes to Fontaine with more than 23 years experience in the commercial vehicle industry. As vice president of business development, he is responsible for OEM sales, as well as fleet and dealer sales activities. He is also in charge of marketing, customer service and business development.

"Terry is a valuable addition to our team," Bell says. "He is a proven leader, knows the industry well and is absolutely focused on serving customers."

Mennen has worked for Federal-Mogul, Hendrickson International and MacLean-Fogg. He earned a bachelor's degree in business administration from the University of Iowa.
